The Democratic National Convention.

Amid scene of great enthusiasm the first session of the Democratic National Convention was held Tuesday at Denver. Following the speech of Theodore Bell, of California, the temporary chairman, who for an hour expounded in eloquent manner the position of the Democratic party on the leading questions at issue, the committees were formed and the convention adjourned out of respect to the memory of former President Grover Cleveland, until noon Wednesday.

The following is the resolution offered by I. J. Dunn, of Omaha, Neb.:

As it has pleased the Ruler of the Universe to remove from our midst Grover Cleveland, late President of the United States, who was three times the candidate of the Democratic party, be it

Resolved, That we, the delegates of the party in national convention assembled, recognize in him one of the strongest and ablest characters known to the world's statesmanship, who possessed to an extraordinary degree the elements of leadership, and by his able, conscientious and forceful administration of public affairs reflected honor upon his country and his party; and

Resolved, That we hereby express our deep sorrow at his death and extend our warmest sympathy and condolence to his family, and that this resolution be spread upon the records of the convention and a copy forwarded to Mrs. Cleveland; and

Resolved, As a further mark of respect to his memory, the convention do now adjourn until 12 o'clock (noon) tomorrow.

Mr. Dunn mounted upon a chair, moved the adoption of his resolution, and for the purpose of seconding the resolution, the Chair recognized ex-Governor David R. Francis, of Missouri, who spoke briefly in eulogy of Mr. Cleveland.

The demonstration at the National Convention Wednesday when William Jennings Bryan's name was mentioned by Senator Gore broke all records of National conventions for enthusiasm and duration. The cheering lasted for exactly thirty minutes, full thirty-nine minutes longer than the cheering for Roosevelt at the Republican convention at Chicago.

The Resolutions Committee spent the entire day Wednesday at work upon the platform, and finding that the subcommittee would be unable to finish its task in a reasonable time, it was sub-divided and committees of three were named to write individual planks. The tariff plank was submitted and approved. It calls for an immediate reduction of the duties on all necessities of life, on all articles manufactured by trusts, and singles out print paper and wood pulp as articles which should be on the free list.

When temporary Chairman Bell called the Democratic National Convention to order for the third day's session yesterday morning Rabbi Samuel Koch offered prayer.

The report of the Committee on Permanent Organization was received and adopted and the Permanent Chairman, Henry C. Clayton, of Alabama, was escorted to the platform. He at once began his speech.

The platform upon which the planks are being nailed by the Committee on Resolutions, was presented and adopted by the convention late in the day, with a possibility of nominating speeches and a vote for the Presidential candidate last night.

It was the intention of the leaders after nominating Bryan last night to adjourn until this morning to nominate the candidate for Vice Presidency.

A SPRING TONIC.

With the coming of the Spring days, those days that exhilarate, yet produce that tired feeling, Nature needs an assistant to encourage a man of to-day to his best efforts. Physicians advise against medicines. What then? The celebrated

There is food and tonic in LION BEER. Invalids and convalescents find it invaluable for building up exhausted strength. As a nourishing food for mothers, there is nothing to equal it.

Reasonable Profit.

What is "a reasonable profit" for the Industrial Trusts to charge over and above the difference between the cost of production at home and abroad? The Republican managers who are hand and glove with the protected trusts and combines evidently know, but are afraid to inform the voters, for the Republican platform declares that:

"In all tariff legislation the true principle of protection is best maintained by the imposition of such duties as will equal the difference between the cost of production at home and abroad, together with a reasonable profit to American industries."

As the present tariff undoubtedly upholds "the true principle of protection," for it more "than equals the difference between the cost of production at home and abroad" and has allowed our trusts and protected interests to charge much higher prices here than similar goods are produced and sold for in foreign countries, one would think even the friends of protectionism would be satisfied. But it appears from what the Republican platform declares that on top of this enormous difference in prices here and abroad, there is to be a further increase in tariff rates, if the Republicans are successful, by increasing the present tariff duties, so that on top of the profits already enjoyed, there shall be added enough more to insure a "reasonable profit." It is the evident intention of our Republican tariff thinkers to allow the trusts and protected interests to say how much the increase shall be, and as we all know they are not bashful in their ideas of what is "reasonable."

Under this Republican plan of tariff revision "immediately after election," and no doubt it cannot be too immediate for the trusts and protected interests, the present plight of the American people will be comfort, pleasure and affluence compared to what the future will bring, if the voters allow the Republican revisionists and their trust friends full sway.

"Uncle Remus."

Joel Chandler Harris will be missed from literature, but it is in the home and the nursery that his loss will be most keenly felt.

He created a new world for the little folk, a rare and novel realm of fancy, peopled with truly wonderful animals endowed with human sagacity. He introduced them to Brer Rabbit, now one of their best loved companions, and made them acquainted with Brer Possum and Brer B'ar. He fired their childish imagination with odd and curious stories of negro folklore and opened wide their eyes with wonder tales from plantation myths. His gallery of animal types was a unique contribution to letters.

Harris' art, like his life, was humble. He never turned his pen to high themes. Yet as an entirely original American writer, one native and racy of the soil, he deserved a place with Poe, Whitman, Hawthorne, Mark Twain and Bret Harte.

An Era of Extravagance.

The Roosevelt administration now places to its account the third deficit in seven years. With deficits of $42,000,000 in 1904, $23,000,000 in 1905 and now $60,000,000 in 1908—considering the flush times it has enjoyed up to nine months ago—it makes a shockingly bad showing.

This deficit of $60,000,000 for the fiscal year just ended represents the penalty paid for wilful extravagance. It is only $4,000,000 less than the total shrinkage in Government receipts during a year of acute financial panic and general depression in trade. Primarily it is due to an increase of $80,000,000 in expenditures in one year, without which there would have been only a negligible deficit. With appropriations amounting to the immense aggregate of $1,008,804,894 for the year now beginning, Mr. Roosevelt promises to signalized the end of his term in the Presidency by still deeper inroads upon the surplus accumulated in days of prosperity.

The twelve months just closed have witnessed the heaviest expenditures in the history of the country since 1865, not excepting the period of the war with Spain. Under Mr. Roosevelt the expenditures for the three years 1906-1908, together with the appropriations for 1909, when the country has been at peace, have reached the grand total of $3,428,809,371, or $33,978,440 more than during the four years of the civil war.

One of the most formidable tasks of Mr. Roosevelt's successor will be to keep the country on a working basis within its income. No project to spend money was ever vetoed by Mr. Roosevelt. Many projects to spend more money which he advocated failed of approval by Congress. Public extravagance is a disease which he has done nothing to check, but much to make compulsory upon later administrations.

An Alarmed Partisan.

Fire Alarm Foraker is still sounding signals of distress to the Republican brethren, and declares that Taft will have a hard time in being elected. But after a while, when the Taft people in Ohio have agreed that Foraker shall be re-elected United States Senator, we may expect to hear frantic appeals by Foraker to the negroes and the wage earners, to "rally round the flag boys" and once more get together for the G. O. P. and incidentally for Foraker.

The Millionaires and the President.

That millionaire Cincinnati who is at the point of death, as a result of cheering for thirty minutes for Roosevelt at the Chicago Convention, should be a warning to the other 63 millionaires who attended the convention to let such strenuous politics as Roosevelt seems to require religiously alone in the future. This said case of overwrought enthusiasm for the President raises the serious question: Why did "the malefactors of great wealth" cheer for the President? President Roosevelt was supposed to be chasing these rich malefactors to their dens in the lairs of the Octopii, and other predatory corporations, and here we have evidence of collusion, or at least, affection between the millionaires and the President, even to the point of sacrificing his health, if not their lives in his behalf. This devotion is beyond our comprehension.

Cook's Great Record.

"Concentrate your mind on the oven," said Miss Teresa McDonald of Boston in explaining the wonders of her art in pastry cooking. She owns the proud record of 394,000 pies baked in 40 years at one restaurant, besides scores of other dainties. If all her pies were laid out in a row they would reach 70 miles. She has made 2,000,000 doughnuts in 27 years and 788,400 puddings.

Making Good.

There is no way of making lasting friends like "Making Good," and Doctor Pierce's medicines well exemplify this, and their friends, after more than two decades of popularity, are numbered by the hundreds of thousands. They have "made good" and they have not made drunkards.

A good, honest, square-deal medicine of known composition is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It still enjoys an immense sale, while most of the preparations that have come into prominence in the earlier period of its popularity have "gone by the board" and are never more heard of. There must be some reason for this long-time popularity and that is to be found in its superior merits. When once given a fair trial for weak stomach, or for liver and blood affections, its superior curative qualities are soon manifested; hence it has survived and grown in popular favor, while scores of less meritorious articles have suddenly flashed into favor for a brief period and then been as soon forgotten.

For a torpid liver with its attendant indigestion, dyspepsia, headache, perhaps dizziness, foul breath, nasty coated tongue, with bitter taste, loss of appetite, with distress after eating, nervousness and debility, nothing is so good as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It's an honest, square-deal medicine with all its ingredients printed on bottle-wrapper—no secret, no hocus-pocus humbug, therefore don't accept a substitute that the dealer may possibly make a little bigger profit. Insist on your right to have what you call for.

Don't buy Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription expecting it to prove a "cure-all." It is only advised for woman's special ailments. It makes weak women strong and sick women well. Less advertised than some preparations sold for like purposes, its sterling curative virtues still maintain its position in the front ranks, where it stood over two decades ago. As an invigorating tonic and strengthening nervine it is unequalled. It won't satisfy those who want "boozie," for there is not a drop of alcohol in it.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, the original Little Liver Pills, although the first pill of their kind in the market, still lead, and when once tried are ever afterwards in favor. Easy to take as candy—one to three a dose. Much imitated but never equalled.

Shop Worn Goods.

It was a hot afternoon, and Mrs. Perkins, who had taken the children, seven in number, to "the greatest show on earth," felt the heat and was otherwise much dissatisfied. "What's the nationality of them?" she demanded of one of the guards, pointing to the elephants.

"Those are from Africa," replied the man, and Mrs. Perkins looked dubiously from the great animals to the guard and back again to the elephants.

"They appear dreadful light colored to have come from Africa, seems to me," she remarked, "and that giraffe's neck ain't what I expected for length, either, and there's only one double hump among the camels, and the hair's all rubbed off him in spots. I reckon this isn't the first show he's been in by a good deal."

She detached the youngest Perkins from the monkey's cage and turned again to the attendant.

"You tell the manager of this show from me," she commanded, "that I shan't pay 50 cents for myself and $1.75 for this mess of children another year to see light colored elephants and a giraffe and a kangaroo with short necks and legs and a posy of single humpers, with only one double hump, and him secondhand!"

"You tell him that from Mrs. Philander Perkins, and tell him I mean it too!"—Youth's Companion.

A Terrible Situation.

There can be few more terrible discoveries than that the man in your company has suddenly gone mad and that you cannot escape him. That was the position of an old lady and her female companion when, just as their train was gliding out of a London terminus, a man popped into the carriage and banged the door after him. The first stop was eighty miles away, and it seemed as far as eternity when the man produced from his pocket a number of razors and began to cut up an orange. The old lady gave her furboa an extra twist about her throat. "Do you like orange?" said the maniac as he stuck a piece on the end of a razor and popped it into her mouth. She accepted the gift with thanks, and he was anxious to feed her with more. He assured him that she liked to eat her orange slowly and made it last. She had to make each portion given to her on the razor last her so long that there was still a piece or two left when the first stoppage and rescue came.—St. James' Gazette.

English in Switzerland.

At a certain hotel in a lovely Alpine resort to which many English visitors were attracted a new proprietor, desiring to cater for such, had this notice, of his own composition, exhibited in the reception room:

"Gentlemen who come in this hotel not say anything about their meals they will be charged for, and if they should say beforehand that they are going to breakfast or dinner, are if they say that they not have anything to eat they will be charged, and if not so, they will be charged, or unless they bring it to the notice of the manager, and should they want not to say anything, they must order the manager for, and not any one else, and unless they not bring it to the notice of the manager they will be charged for the least things not, according to hotel rate. And no fuss will be allowed afterward about it, and nothing will be allowed to deduct anything out of it."—Pearson's.

Fiddle and Grow Hair.

It is now a scientifically proved fact that music exercises a great influence on the growth of the hair. It is with good reason that great musicians, such as Paganini, Liszt and Paderewski, are represented with a growth of hair which Absalom might have envied. Science has proved that stringed instruments have a favorable influence on the growth of the hair, while brass instruments act in the opposite direction. Every one has probably observed that a bald violinist is as rare as a bald horn player is common. Wood instruments, such as the flute, seem to have no pronounced influence either way.—Paris Menestrel.

His Wife's Advice.

Sir William Treloar told me once of the nervousness he felt on the very first occasion when he acted as a chairman. He was on tenterhooks lest he should do anything malapropos and consulted his wife as to how he should act. "I do not know what are a chairman's duties, but if I were invited to take the chair I think I should sit in it," was Lady Treloar's reply, and this advice the Knight of Ludgate Hill rigidly followed.—London P. NEW CENTURY BINDER

This binder has a world-wide reputation. In every grain growing country under the sun it is said to be the best yet by all who use it or see it work. The features that appeal most to its users are:—lightness of draft; handiness of operation; durability of construction; ability to do perfect work in any kind of grain; accuracy and sure work of knotters; absence of neck weight and side draft. The New Century is the latest type of binder, made by the people who gave the world its first successful binder, and now give it its most successful one—a binder that

Are Different From All Others

When the late Walter A. Wood built his first mower in 1858 it was upon a principle entirely different from any other. That same principle today distinguishes our mowers from all others. It is the "floating frame" described so fully in our catalog. All manufacturers of mowers admit that the "direct under-draft" principle is the correct one—but they can't use it because genuine under-draft is possible only with the "floating frame" construction which is exclusive to Walter A. Wood Mowers. We feel justified in asserting that our mowers are: the easiest running; lightest draft; handiest to operate; least expensive to keep in repair and longest lived. The mower that leads on these points is the mower it will pay the farmer to buy. There are many other good points fully illustrated and described in our Catalog. Write for it today.

Union of Baptists and Disciples of Christ.

The Rev. I. J. Spencer, pastor of the Central Christian church, of Lexington (or Disciples of Christ, the term used by the members of this denomination) will accept an invitation to address the National Baptist Congress, to be held in Chicago November 10 to 12, upon the subject, "What Definite Steps Should be Immediately Taken Toward the Union of Baptists, Free Baptists and Disciples of Christ." Other speakers representing the first two denominations also will discuss the topic, and it is expected that the discussion will result in a long stride toward the union of the two denominations—Baptists and Disciples of Christ, the first steps toward which were taken two years ago.

At the National Congress of Disciples, in Indianapolis, in March, 1906, by invitation Dr. E. Y. Mullins, president of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, of Louisville, and Mr. Spencer discussed the topic: "What Does the New Testament Teach Concerning the Doctrine of the Remission of Sins." One session of the congress was given entirely to the address.

The similarity of the teachings of the denominations on vital points aroused great enthusiasm. This gave rise to the suggestion that through committees the two denominations might learn as exactly as possible just what are their doctrinal differences. Acting upon the suggestion, the congress appointed a committee of ten, with Mr. Spencer chairman, and invited the appointment of a committee of equal number from the Baptists, with Dr. Mullins chairman. Since that time the heads of committees have held frequent conference and consultations.

The original drafts of the statements have been completed and are before the members of the committee for suggestions. When finally revised these statements will be given wide publicity through the religious press, and in the course of time will come before the congress of the denominations. Neither of the denominations has a governing ecclesiastical body, each congregation being a separate authoritative unit. Consequently these committees cannot act authoritatively for their respective denominations, and their reports will contain no recommendation. Each will set forth the doctrinal teaching of that denomination. The rough drafts show that they are surprisingly alike. When this is known through publication the belief is held that in a spirit of fraternity and desire for unity the denominations will waive minor differences and merge congregations, acting as individuals, yet probably in concert, pursuant to a recommendation from their congresses. In Western Canada Disciples and Baptists have already united, are using churches in common and share things alike.

"Ruth," the intelligent fox terrier and pet of Mrs. Mary Gorham Thomas, died Wednesday morning, and the owner is very much distressed. "Ruth" had been a constant companion of Mrs. Thomas for years, and she was as near human as any dog could be. Mrs. Thomas is very deaf, so much so that she cannot hear her telephone bell ring or a knock at her front door. She depended altogether upon this dog to notify her. When the bell would ring or someone would knock at the door, "Ruth" would at once begin to bark and run to her mistress leading her either to the door or telephone as the case might be. Her death is indeed a great loss to Mrs. Thomas.

A Simple Man

By MADELINE LEWIS

Copyrighted, 1905, by Jessie Morgan.

Young Mr. Trask, the lawyer, intended to be a candidate for the legislature in the Fourth district. He had the reputation of being sharp, keen and shrewd. Many said he was "up to snuff." Others said that he would see that the interests of the district were not overlooked. Some thought he ought to have the nomination because he was just beginning his career and this would give him a boost. The young man had been in Watervale only a year, and as he was only twenty-seven, good looking and bound to succeed he had made a place for himself in society. He could flatter himself that he had made progress in every family but one, the Thompson family.

They called John Thompson "Honest John." That had been his appellation for years. He was part farmer and part citizen and not well off in this world's goods, and yet he had a reputation that plenty of men might envy. His daughter Minnie, an only child, was neither a belle nor a leader of society, but she was fair looking and possessed of strong character and not at all the young lady to be captivated by the personal advantages of the young Mr. Trask.

They had met socially, and she had not at all been taken with him. On the other hand, he had been greatly impressed. Intuition told him that he was not in favor, but the opposition only stimulated him. He had easily made friends with the father, but he found that to win the girl's interest would be a far different thing.

For weeks it had been a foregone conclusion that Mr. Trask would be nominated and elected, but when the convention was finally called it developed that the ring politicians had not counted on the farming community. The men of the plow had become tired of the politicians and their tricks—of the promises so freely made and so often broken—and when the moment came they broke away and made a surprising nomination.

"Honest John" was the nominee. He had never held a political office in his life. He was home and at work instead of being at the convention, but his friends pledged him to stand, and he accepted it. Only one influence decided him in this matter, and that was the advice of his daughter.

"Father," she said to him when the news came, "you are not a politician, and you are not a schemer. You can't make a speech, and you won't be heard of in that body. You are simply a plain, honest man, and you will go there to represent others of the same ilk. It is a time when plain, honest men are wanted at the front. Go there and do your duty as best you can."

"I wish Lawyer Trask had got it," he sighed. "He can make speeches and mix in with the best of 'em and come home to be talked of in the papers. I shall be only a toadstool on a stump. By the way, hasn't he coming here pretty often?"

"Yes; he calls occasionally."

"I thought it was a little oftener than occasionally."

"If it is, he is wasting his time. Father, I don't like Mr. Trask. He is too ambitious to get ahead. He is so ambitious that he loses sight of the scruples that should guide all honest men. He wanted to go to the legislature simply as a means to advance his own interests."

"But I took him to be a young man of good principles."

"Politics has no principles, and he seeks to be a politician. There is but one watchword with them, and that is to win. You will be elected as an honest man and not as a politician."

"Oh, I shan't do any stealing," smiled the father, "but I'm thinking that I'll feel like a cat in a strange garret up there. I'd a heap rather they had sent some one else, but I'll try it for a term if you say so. Perhaps there'll be three or four other old codgers like me to get in with."

There was no question about the chagrin and disappointment of the young lawyer over his defeat, but he dissembled fairly well before the girl when he made his next call. He acknowledged that it was something of a setback, but rejoiced that it was her father who had secured the nomination.

Before departing he grew sentimental and might have made a declaration of his love if he had not been checked. He must have plainly understood that he had as yet created no interest, but in his perversity he determined to continue.

The farmer had hardly been settled in his seat at the state capitol when Trask appeared. He was more than usually deferential and friendly. He could and he did give the honest man many helpful pointers, and it was a fortnight before the errand that brought him there was stated. He was a lobbyist for a certain corporation which wanted an old railroad charter renewed.

"Honest John" had read and heard something about that charter. He had never fairly got to the right or wrong of it, but when the lawyer came to talk with him about it and endeavor to enlist his aid John Thompson gave no pledge. Trask was promised that the question should be looked into, and if it could be conscientiously done he should receive the farmer's aid.

It looked easy for a man who was "up to snuff" to handle this old farmer. He handled others, and then sent them to Thompson to argue and discuss and win him over. Money and promises were freely used, and there came a time when the lobbyist could at least figure on an even vote in the house.

"Honest John" still stuck out. He hadn't the acumen to discover where the colored gentleman was hidden, but he had a feeling that he was there in the wood pile somewhere, and he would not commit himself.

It was then that the lawyer dropped argument for the more powerful weapon. He knew the financial condition of the farmer. He doubted if the man had ever had a thousand dollars in his hand. Though rated as "honest," there was a doubt as to whether he could stand temptation—legislative temptation.

One night he paid Thompson a visit in his room and went over the whole matter with him, putting everything in a most favorable light, and when he went away he left a thousand dollars in crisp greenbacks on the bureau. That was double the price he had paid others, but he had reasons for increasing the bribe. The money was found after he left, and next day the old farmer came to him to restore it.

"It must have been left by some other caller," was the reply, "probably by some one who was in there, arguing in favor of my bill. He may speak to you about it in the course of the day."

"But he was mighty careless to leave a thousand dollars lying around that way."

"Oh, he isn't worrying about it. Perhaps he wanted to make you a little present and took that way of doing it. It's often done here in the legislature, you know."

"It may be, but I've done nothing to earn it, and I don't know more than ten members by name. I wish that the teller who left it would come back."

He was told to hang on to the money until the owner called for it, but he was much perplexed and put out. By a curious coincidence three weeks later he found two other farmer members who had come into possession of $500 each in just as mysterious a manner. There seemed to be a philanthropist going about among the conscientious members and distributing rewards of merit.

When the house adjourned for a week and "Honest John" went home to his daughter he had that thousand dollars with him, and its history was still a mystery. In a few hours, however, he was enlightened, and he went back to the legislative body to enlighten others.

The day finally came when Lawyer Trask's bill was up. He had counted noses and was sure of its passage. He sat there in the utmost confidence, to be amazed and dumfounded when it was defeated by a majority of three. Honest John and his two farmer friends had recorded their votes among the "nays," although they had been bought and paid for. An hour later the former had a caller at his room. The caller was pale faced and desperate.

"Mr. Thompson," he said, "I left a thousand dollars on that bureau one night a few weeks ago."

"Geewhittaker! But you denied it was yours!"

"It was a little present."

"But why should you make me a present of a thousand dollars?"

"Because—because I wanted your help on that bill and because I was going to ask your daughter to be my wife."

"And maybe you left $500 apiece for Crane and Williams?"

"Yes."

"And you were going to ask their daughters to be your wife?"

"No-o-o."

"See here, Mr. Trask," said the old man after looking at him for half a minute, "if I were you I wouldn't ask Minnie to be your wife. I told her all about the money when I went home. She said as it wasn't yours and as no one had lost it and as Crane and Williams was in the same fix that the money belonged to charity."

"We sent it down to her, and she divided it between a couple of orphan asylums, and she's got the receipts to show that it reached 'em. No, I wouldn't ask her. I might object to you as a son-in-law, and she might take it that you were trying to buy your way into the family."

"Lemme just add that you are a mighty careless man with your money, and if you don't mend your ways you'll bring up in the county house before you are forty years old."

Like a Prince.

"You said that if I bought this suburban house I could live like a prince. With malaria and automobiles I'm in fear for my life!"

"Well," answered the agent soothingly, "think of the princes who live in fear of their lives."—Washington Star

J. WILL THOMAS,
234t East Tenn. 478.

Over Thirty-Five Years.

In 1872 there was a great deal of diarrhoea, dysentery and cholera infantum. It was at this time that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was first brought into use. It proved more successful than any other remedy or treatment, and has for thirty-five years maintained that record. From a small beginning its sale and use has extended to every part of the United States and to many foreign countries. Nine druggists out of ten will recommend it when their opinion is asked, although they have other medicines that pay them a greater profit. It can always be depended upon, even in the most severe and dangerous cases. For sale by W. T. Brooks. You need no other guarantee.

Made His Last Dive.

With thousands of people cheering him and urging him to perform his daring feat, James Hathaway, 35, a trick high diver of Piqua, O., fell from a high tower 100 feet from the ground and was instantly killed at Coney Island, above Cincinnati, Saturday night at 8:45 o'clock.

"Uncle Remus" is Dead.

Joel Chandler Harris, familiarly known as "Uncle Remus," and an author of note, died at his home in a suburb of Atlanta, Ga., Friday night. Mr. Harris, whose health had been good for some time, had only been confined to his bed for about ten days, suffering from hemorrhages of the liver. Complications set in and he grew rapidly worse and continued to sink until the end came.

Joel Chandler Harris was born in Eatontown, Ga., December 9, 1848. He was married in 1873 to Miss Essie LaRose, of Canada, and in 1876 moved to Atlanta, joining the staff of the Atlanta Constitution. It was while he was connected with the Constitution that his tales, "Stories of Uncle Remus," first attracted attention. In 1900 Mr. Harris retired from active journalism, and until last year, when he became editor and proprietor of "Uncle Remus" Magazine, spent most of his time at his suburban home. He is survived by a widow, four sons and two daughters. Mr. Harris was buried in Atlanta.

Boy's Life Saved.

My little boy, four year old, had a severe attack of dysentery. We had two physicians; both of them gave him up. We then gave him Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy which cured him and believe that saved his life.—William H. Stirling, Carbon Hill, Ala. There is no doubt but this remedy saves the lives of many children each year. Give it with caution oil according to the plain printed directions and a cure is certain. For sale by W. T. Brooks. A Deathbed Scene.

"I took one ball too many," sighed the moth, sinking back into his soft bed, "but I feel that I have not lived in vain. Please carve on my tombstone the simple epitaph, Died in the Wool."

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy Would Have Saved Him $100.

"In 1902 I had a very severe attack of diarrhoea," says R. N. Farrer of Cat Island, La. "For several weeks I was unable to do anything. On March 18, 1907 I had a similar attack, and took Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy which gave me prompt relief. I consider it one of the best medicines of its kind in the world, and had I used it in 1902 believe it would have saved me a hundred dollar doctor's bill."—Sold by W. T. Brooks. Bersts All Left-Handed.

Livingston, the great explorer of Africa, who had more chances than most men have to learn the habits of wild beasts, says in his books that they are all left-handed, so to speak, or left-pawed, if you like that way of putting it better. The lion, he says, always strikes with its left paw.

It Reached the Spot.

Mr. E. Humphrey, who owns a large general store at Omega, O., and is president of the Adams County Telephone Co., as well as of the Home Telephone Co., of Pike county, O., says of Dr. King's New Discovery: "It saved my life once. At least I think it did. It seemed to reach the spot—the very seat of my cough—when everything else failed." Dr. King's New Discovery not only reaches the cough spot; it heals the sore spots and the weak spots in throat, lungs and chest. Sold under guarantee at Oberdorfer's drug store. 50 cents and $1. DREAM FOOD.

Hashéesh, the Strange Drug That is Used in the Orient.

Hashéesh, that strange drug which has given our language its word "assassin"—a man so frenzied by the drug that he accomplishes murder—is used by the Persians, Turks and Egyptians in a manner akin to the use of opium by the Chinese. It is the product of a plant grown in large quantities in the Peloponnesus (southern Greece) in the district about Tripolitza. The plant grows to a height of about four feet, and its branches are thickly covered with small leaves and studded with tiny seeds.

The entire plant, stalk and branches, is cut within a few inches of the root and laid out in the sun to dry. The branches are then rubbed to separate the seeds, and these in turn are ground into a fine powder, which constitutes the drug. The drug has the power of inducing sleep and producing pleasant and fantastic dreams. Continued use of hashéesh renders its devotees wild and reckless and results in a complete wreck of their mental and physical constitution.

For this reason the Egyptian government prohibited the importation of the drug and entered into a convention with Greece to prevent its exportation from there to Egypt, where the consumers of hashéesh are very numerous. The drug is practically never used in Greece, but is now exported to the various ports in England, Austria, France and Italy, and from there much, no doubt, ultimately finds its way to Egypt.

BRIGHT SAYINGS.

A Little Batch of Stories Related by an Englishman.

The sultan of Turkey had sent the queen of Spain a diamond bracelet. She had the stones reset in earrings and called the fact to the attention of Fuad Pasha, the Turkish envoy.

"His majesty," replied Fuad, "will be delighted that your majesty gives an ear to what comes from Constantinople."

To the same Fuad an Englishwoman impudently said, "How many wives have you?"

"The same number as your husband, madam," said the wily Turk. "The only difference is that he conceals one of his and I do not."

When Robert Lowe married and said, "With all my worldly goods I thee endow," he grumbled to his wife afterward, "And at the time I hadn't a brass farthing."

"Oh, but, my dear, you forget there is your genius."

Lowe replied, "Well, you cannot say I endowed you with that."

In a much older story Frederick the Great is represented as saying angrily to the English ambassador of the day, "England is now without an ally upon the continent except God."

Sir Hugh Elliott instantly replied, "Yes, sire, but God is an ally that demands no subsidy."—From "Tumbling Reminiscences," by Sir Henry Drummond Wolff.

What Might Have Been.

Lord Rosebury in an address at Glasgow university some years ago gave utterance to the following interesting speculation:

"Had the elder Pitt when he became prime minister not left the house of commons he could doubtless have induced George III. to listen to reason, introduced American representation into parliament and preserved the thirteen colonies to England. The new blood of America would have burst the old vessels of the constitution and provided a self-adjusting system of representation. There would have been no war of separation, no war of 1812, and finally, when the Americans became a majority, the empire would perhaps have moved solemnly across the Atlantic and Britain become a historic shrine, the European outpost of the empire."

The Roman Forum.

The Forum Romanum the first that was erected in Rome, served equally for the purposes of trade and all public meetings as well as for the administration of justice by the consuls and other Roman magistrates. Later on, when the forum numbered some eighteen or twenty, they were divided into two classes, some for public meetings and the proceedings of the law courts and others for the various requirements of trade. The Roman forum corresponded to the agora, or market place, of the Greeks, and no Roman city was without this important center of judicial, political and commercial life.—New York American

His Gratitude.

The Medical Record tells of a man who was cured of blindness by a surgeon remarkable for his unprepossessing appearance. When vision was fully restored, the patient looked at his benefactor and said:

"Lucky for you, young man, I did not see you before you operated or I would never have given my consent."

Humiliation.

"I tell you, sir, kissing the hand that smites you is nothing to what I saw in the hotel this morning."
"What was that?"
"The porter blacking the boots that had kicked him last night."—London Telegraph.

KAHAL BROS.

At the Vaudeville Theatre.

Manager Jackson is keeping things on the move in his efforts to uphold the high standard that his vaudeville house has attained and through his booking agent is securing some of the very best vaudeville attractions that are to be had.

Last night he presented a bill that from all appearances should eclipse all that he has ever offered. The program was as follows:

Act 1—Animated pictures.

Act 2—Lou Seeker, singing and talking comedian.

Act 3—Illustrated song—Miss Nellie Lovely.

Act 5—Animated pictures.

The New York World, of a recent issue, has the following to say in part of Mr. Van Camp and his troupe:

"Pigs in a New York flat—trained pigs, clean pigs, intelligent pigs, that are susceptible to mental suggestion—may be seen at No. 104 West Fortieth street."

"J. C. Van Camp is the owner of these pigs and he has trained them to do some extraordinary stunts."

"One fellow, a twenty-three weeks-old boar, that weighs about thirty pounds, did all his stunts the other afternoon for a Sunday World reporter and artist."

"This one answers to the name of Pete, and not only did he know his name, but at a word of command from his master he turned a circle to the right or to the left according as he was told to do so. He was executed a figure eight through his master's legs and leaped a pair of hurdles like a steeplechaser."

"Besides three pigs Mr. Van Camp has two chickens, a rabbit, a duck, a canary and a guinea pig in his collection every one of them knowing its name and responding to it when called."

Tonight is amateur night at the theatre and there will also be a change in the moving pictures and illustrated song. Tomorrow night there will be a "fiddle contest" in which several local violinists will participate.

Paris Jockey Dead.

John Todd, a 14-year-old colored boy, a jockey belonging to Talbott Bros. racing stable died in a Cincinnati hospital Wednesday after two days' illness with tuberculo meningitis. The boy was taken sick two days ago, when Mr. Hart Talbott called a physician to his stables to see him, who pronounced him quite ill. Mr. Talbott then had him removed to a hospital where he was given every attention, but gradually grew worse until he died. His remains were shipped to his home in this city yesterday for burial.

BIRTHS.

The stork Tuesday night left two boys and one girl at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Spangler, of Industry, near McKeesport, Pa. This is the third set of triplets born in his family, and all are living. Four years ago a family named Engleson, living in the same house, was also favored with triplets, and previous to that a woman who was a foreigner gave birth to three children, at one time in the same dwelling.

Deeply Moved.

"The Democrats have been very good to me and I can find no words to express my deep appreciation of the confidence and good will which the demonstration indicates."

It was with these words that William Jennings Bryan Wednesday afternoon, speaking to a number of newspaper men, acknowledged the remarkable demonstration given him by delegates to the Democratic National Convention.

Change in the Roman Catholic Church.

Sweeping changes in the Roman Catholic church in the United States are to take place, as the result of the order of reorganization just promulgated by the Pope. Removing the United States from the rule of the Propaganda, under which she has been for centuries as a missionary land, will involve a remodeling of the American church along many lines.

As this change opens the way to the appointment of more Cardinals in this country, it is predicted that it will not be long before the red hat will be conferred upon Archbishop Farley, and, after that, possibly upon two more American prelates. The change places the United States on the same footing with nations who have diplomatic representation at the Holy See.

Don't Allow Thistles to Grow.

Thistles growing upon your land you had better cut them down at once or you might be called before the grand jury. Section 200, Kentucky statutes reads: "It shall be the duty of every person or persons, and of every corporation holding land in the commonwealth, either by lease or otherwise, on which any Canada thistles, or weed commonly known as Canada thistle, may be growing to cut the same so as to prevent such weeds or thistles from going to seed and the seed of same from ripening. Any person or persons neglecting to cut the thistle may be fined five dollars and costs for failure to comply with this law."

Died From Shock.

Fred Singleton, an engineer, of Newport, Ky., when apprised by police that he was wanted to swear out a warrant for the arrest of the murderer of his father, who was killed in Cincinnati about one year ago, was seized with convulsions and died soon afterwards.

Blew Out His Teeth.

While the unprecedented demonstration for Bryan was at its height in the Convention Wednesday the whole movement was endangered by the appalling accident of a yelling delegate losing his false teeth.

The great procession of states had stated to leave the speakers' stand when the delegate, whose name history does not record, opened his mouth to yell and blew his false teeth into the crowd. They rolled under the press stand and down on his knees the delegate went to get them. This halted the procession, as most of the marchers were anxious to find out what he was looking for. He recovered the missing lunch macerators, clapped them into his mouth and started another yell. The parade moved on.

Old Confederate Assaulted.

Edward O'Brien, aged sixty-five years, an inmate of the Kentucky Confederate Home at Pewee Valley, is confined to his bed in the infirmary of the home, suffering from severe wounds he received when assaulted, it is alleged, with an ax by an old comrade while he was lying in bed in his room at 5 o'clock Tuesday morning. But for the timely arrival of O'Brien's room-mate, W. H. Carter, he might have been killed, it is said. John McCreary, another inmate of the institution, who is alleged to have inflicted the wounds, left immediately after the attack upon O'Brien, and has not been seen since. He is said to have stated that he intended going to La-grange and surrender to the authorities of Oldham county.

Three New Companies.

Three new companies have been added to the Kentucky State Guard by the mustering in of the companies out Beattyville and Catlettsburg in the Second Regiment and at Columbia in the Third regiment. These take the places of three companies in the Second regiment, which have been mustered out.

Some Sweetness.

Mr. Frazee Waver, the Minerva apiarist, recently shipped by rail from Dover 3,000 pounds of a fine quality of strained honey. This is the first of the two harvests of honey of the year. Mr. C. T. Biggers, of near Dover will have as much or more from his apiary. Thus it can be easily calculated that during 1908 the bees belonging to these two gentlemen will have gathered over twelve thousand pounds of honey. And they didn't do it by sitting around gossiping about their neighbors or attending to anybody's business but their own.—Dover News.

Caleb Powers Case.

The last step in the trial of Caleb Powers was taken at Georgetown Monday when the special term of court, called to try Powers, was convened and the pardon from Gov. Willson was produced. The indictment was filed away for good and the case closed. The trials of Taylor and Finley will be called at the next term of court and the Governor will be asked to issue requisitions for them.

The residence property of Mrs. Harriet Duvall, occupied by John H. Conway and family at Ruddle's Mills, this county, was destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon. All the household effects of the family were saved. A portion of the house was used as an exchange for the East Tennessee Telephone Co., Mr. Conway having charge at that point.

What is Meant by Loom Ends?
Where Do They Come From?
We Will Tell You.

Loom Ends are goods that fall short in length of the requirements for export purposes, but identical in quality with the first grades, yet still not to be classed with the regular goods, because they are wanting in length, or a slight imperfection in the weave, careless stitching in the underwear or a thread dropped in hosiery. These are Loom Ends. None of these slight flaws hurt the wear or the looks of the goods to the customer, but they prevent mills or factories from selling them at a profit. The enormous stock of Loom Ends we have purchased for this sale are all new goods, fresh from the looms, and are offered today at Loom cost. You will never know what Loom End Cost is if you fail to attend this sale, for the prices given are but an inkling of the money-saving opportunities offered. You pay two or three times the price for the same goods at other stores.
